COMPANY OVERVIEW

BMBFA is a non-profit 501(c)3 organization.

Goal

BMBFA's goal is to have a national impact on the reduction of racial disparities in breastfeeding success for black families.

Mission

BMBFA's mission is to reduce racial inequities in breastfeeding support for black families.

Value Proposition

BMBFA's value proposition is to optimize the first food experience for black families through direct service, education, and advocacy.

Vision

BMBFA envisions positive cultural sentiments about breastfeeding, multi-generational breastfeeding support and encouragement within black families and neighborhoods.

Aim

BMBFA aims to build foundational networks of support, and strengthen systems to overcome historical, societal and social barriers to breastfeeding success.

Objectives

BMBFA's objective is to provide education, valuable resources and ongoing support to black families and public/private agencies that service these families.

October 13, 2017

Dear Attendees,

On behalf of Black Mothers' Breastfeeding Association (BMBFA), we are delighted to welcome you to our 8th National Seminar, "Uplifting Leadership in Maternal Care". It is almost hard to believe that we commenced our first seminar in 2008. In fact, we began here in this very same room at Henry Ford Hospital. Some of our attendees have enjoyed this experience so much that they have joined us year after year. Each time, making this experience more dynamic for us all. Whether you have been here with us every year, joined along the way or here for the first time, we graciously welcome you.

This Seminar is a very important learning opportunity. It gives us a chance to reflect, learn, reaffirm and rejuvenate. The Seminar is designed to facilitate and promote broader learning within the maternal and child health field, while helping to achieve BMBFA's goal "to have national impact on the reduction of racial disparities in breastfeeding success for black families"; support our mission "to reduce racial inequities in breastfeeding support for black families", and to enhance our value proposition "to optimize the first food experience for black families through direct service, education, and advocacy". We assure you that the plenary address, panel discussions and keynote speaker will improve your understanding of breastfeeding, doula care and perinatal health while highlighting ways to uplift, acknowledge and support industry leadership.

We want you to be actively involved in today's activities. You are invited to comment, probe, extend and enhance the ideas presented today. Think of this as an interactive learning exchange - an intentional conversation. Let this be a day of growth and development for us all!

Throughout the day, we will uplift traditional and non-traditional leadership. Our presenters have traveled from as far as California and Louisiana, representing a magnitude of leadership and expertise. They are experienced public health directors, entrepreneurs, academics, nurses, doulas, nutritionists, community leaders, and more. We are honored to present you with this amount of experience and knowledge, and hope to revolutionize your view of leadership.

We thank you each of you being here. We also thank our generous supporters; W.K. Kellogg Foundation, Michigan Department of Health and Human Services, Henry Ford Health System, Blue Cross Complete of Michigan, Michigan Education Trust and Evenflo Feeding.

With Gratitude,

Anjanette Davenport Hatter

Presenters' Biographies

Khalilah Burt Gaston is an urban planner, real estate practitioner and advocate for inclusive cities. Her work has been featured in Next City, Dwell Magazine, The New York Times, Huffington Post, Chicago Public Radio, and the Harvard Family Research Project.

As a Program Officer at the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, Khalilah is responsible for identifying and nurturing opportunities for affecting positive systemic change within communities across the state. She is also responsible for executing programming efforts to further the foundation's mission, as well as working closely with staff to ensure integration and coordination of efforts.

Burt Gaston has been an active participant in the revitalization of Michigan cities for 15 years, she has held positions in the non-profit and governmental sectors. Prior to joining the foundation, she served as Executive Director for the Vanguard Community Development Corporation in Detroit.

From 2009 through 2012, she was the Development Specialist for the State of Michigan Land Bank Fast Track Authority where she led redevelopment efforts on behalf of the state-wide authority including the Capitol Park Redevelopment Initiative and Neighborhood Stabilization Program 2 Consortium, a statewide community development initiative in six Michigan cities. Prior to joining the state land bank, Gaston was with the Downtown Detroit Partnership for four years. She also served as an external evaluator for The Skillman Foundation's A Call to Service Initiative.

She received a Bachelor of Sports Management and Communication degree and a Master of Urban Planning degree and from the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor where she was recognized by the University of Michigan/Urban Land Institute Real Estate Forum, Network of Commercial Real Estate Women and the Center for the Education of Women for her academic accomplishments.

Winona Bynum is the executive director of the Detroit Food Policy Council (DFPC) an education, advocacy and policy organization led by Detroiters committed to creating a sustainable, local food system that promotes food security, food justice and food sovereignty in the city of Detroit. Winona has extensive leadership and program management experience. Prior to joining DFPC, her work experience includes roles at Gleaners Community Food Bank of Southeastern Michigan, and the Ann Arbor based national nonprofit organization, Fair Food Network. Winona is a registered dietitian/nutritionist (RDN) and a graduate of Wayne State University's Coordinated Program in Dietetics. She is currently pursuing a Master of Public Health (MPH) degree from Emory University's Rollins School of Public Health Executive MPH Program. Winona is dedicated to helping others gain access to the knowledge and foods needed to make healthier choices.

Jaye Clement, MPH, MPP, is the Director of Community Health Programs and Strategies with the Office of Community Health, Equity and Wellness at Henry Ford Health System in Detroit, Michigan. She is responsible for aligning the System's commitment to its communities by engaging new and existing partners around issues of community health, and managing metrics and data sets to monitor and continuously improve strategies that contribute to community benefit. In this role, Jaye also staffs the Detroit Regional Infant Mortality Reduction Task Force and holds administrative oversight for their nationally-recognized and award-winning Women-Inspired Neighborhood Network: Detroit program. Within that capacity, she serves as a co-lead, along with the Institute for Population Health and Detroit Health Department for the Detroit Institute for Equity in Birth Outcomes. Jaye is also working to operationalize a Community Health Worker Hub for the health system and serves as the Community Outreach Coordinator for the Henry Ford Cancer Institute's Network Cancer Committee. Jaye earned her MPH in health behavior and health education from the University of Michigan School of Public Health and her MPP from the Gerald R. Ford School of Public Policy, both in 2005. She currently serves as a fellow with the W.K. Kellogg Foundation's Community Leadership Network. She also works closely with the Detroit Community-Academic Urban Research Center (URC) as a Community Policy Advocacy Trainer for the Neighborhoods Working in Partnership: Building Capacity for Policy Change Project, serves on the board of directors for local non-profit, Teen HYPE (Helping Youth by Providing Education), and is an advisory board member for Black Mothers' Breastfeeding Association. Jaye is a mother of two boys, wife and life-long Detroiter.

Shannon Cohen is the founder and principal of Shannon Cohen, Inc. Shannon is an award-winning industry leader and sought-after strategist, innovator, and inspirational leader. Through Shannon Cohen, Inc. Shannon has served several entities including but not limited to, The White House Office of National Drug Control Policy, the Michigan High Intensity Drug Trafficking Agency, Kids Food Basket, Network180, Heartside Ministry, Friends of Grand Rapids Parks, Pine Rest Christian Mental Health Services, Wyoming Public Schools, Camp Blodgett, and Project GREEN.

She has been an active member of local, regional, and national philanthropic and community development efforts for the past sixteen years. Shannon has created, managed, and scaled several movements, initiatives, and incubator efforts designed to foster community renewal and stem public health ills with a special focus on youth.

Shannon is a W.K. Kellogg Foundation fellow, an Encore Innovation Fellow with the Grand Rapids Community Foundation, and has received several awards for her work and service including a 2015 Grand Rapids Business Journal Influential Woman feature, the 2014 '40 Under Forty' Award, Rising Star Award from Our Community's Children, and the Local Champion and Hero Award from the Michigan Coalition to Reduce Underage Drinking.

Shannon is a practitioner adjunct faculty member for the College of Community and Public Service and the School of Public, Nonprofit, and Health Administration at Grand Valley State University. She is passionate about empowering emerging and existing leaders to be transformative in the communities they serve.

Most recently, Shannon birthed ‘Tough Skin, Soft Heart’. Tough Skin, Soft Heart is a movement specializing in empowering today’s overextended leader to navigate the emotional, mental, and, physical strain that often accompanies a life committed to being a difference-maker. Tough Skin, Soft Heart features three tiers – a blog series, motivational speaking, and a product line featuring portable affirmation in the form of graphic tees, soy candles, wall art, journals, stationary, and custom magnets. One of her blogs, ‘Frenemies’ was published in the Huffington Post in 2016.

Shannon is the co-founder of Sisters Who Lead, a movement birthed out a research study Shannon facilitated with Patricia Sosa VerDuin entitled, ‘Invisible Walls, Ceilings, and Floors: Championing the Voices and Inclusion of Female Leaders of Color in West Michigan.’

Shannon and her husband are the proud parents of a 3-year old son, Duriel Cohen II.

Anjanette Davenport Hatter has dedicated her time to eliminate health disparities in her community. Her work as a Healthcare Equity Ambassador at Henry Ford Health System and her role as a member of the Equity Committee with the United States Breastfeeding Committee have enabled her to cultivate change in healthcare and breastfeeding support at a local and national level. As President of Black Mothers’ Breastfeeding Association, she has helped reduce disparities in breastfeeding in African American families.

Davenport Hatter has worked extensively with organizations that address risk factors for chronic diseases such as Gift of Life Minority Organ and Tissue Transplant Education Program (MOTTEP), National Kidney Foundation of Michigan, Children’s Hospital of Michigan and through various health initiatives as a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc.

She has spearheaded various initiatives such as volunteering with Children’s Hospital Hemodialysis Pediatric Suite, community health fairs focusing on the awareness and prevention of Chronic Kidney Disease, catheter reductions in hemodialysis patients and has organized minority organ donor drives.

Davenport Hatter presented at the 2013 National Kidney Foundation Spring Clinical Meeting. Her tireless efforts in working to improve health outcomes in her community has led to her nominations for the WEGO Health Activist Award and the National Advisory Council on Maternal, Infant and Fetal Nutrition-Breastfeeding Promotion.

Davenport Hatter holds a bachelor’s degree from Michigan State University and a master’s degree in social work from Wayne State University. She is a dedicated wife, mother and social worker.

Kiddada Green is a thought leader, the founding executive director of Black Mothers' Breastfeeding Association (BMBFA), co-founder of Black Breastfeeding Week, and lead consultant for the First Food Friendly Community Initiative. Ms. Green is also an esteemed member of the inaugural class of the W.K. Kellogg Foundation's Community Leadership Network Fellowship Program. She is committed to supporting families, and training maternal child health professionals on culturally appropriate breastfeeding support. In her travels throughout the United States, she has led countless discussions and trainings. As an expert in community-centered approaches, she put forth recommendations for The U.S. Surgeon

General's Call to Action to Support Breastfeeding, has been featured in Ebony Magazine, and is a program reviewer for the American Public Health Association. She is a published journal writer for Breastfeeding Medicine and an avid learner, who successfully completed a business accelerator fellowship with Enterprising Health, a subsidiary of Ascension Health. Kiddada holds a Bachelor's Degree from Michigan State University and a Master's Degree in the Art of Teaching from Oakland University. Kiddada Green is a proud and devoted wife, mother and educator.

Nikki Greenaway is a Family Nurse Practitioner, Certified Lactation Counselor and Child Care Health Consultant. She founded Nurse Nikki LLC in 2011. Nikki educates and counsels women, families, schools and businesses about pregnancy, birth, postpartum, breastfeeding, and new baby care. She also creates and facilitates parenting and breastfeeding programs for Healthy Start New Orleans and WIC. In 2014, she cofounded Café au Lait: Breastfeeding Support for Women of Color in an effort to provide a culturally space for pregnant and nursing mothers to talk about their breastfeeding journeys.

Pete Haak, MS has been interested in maternal and child health since he was himself a child. This led him to pursue a career in medical research. While completing his MS and PhD in epidemiology and biostatistics at Michigan State University Mr. Haak took a job with the State of Michigan. Mr. Haak is the project coordinator and primary analysis for the Michigan Pregnancy Risk Assessment Monitoring System - PRAMS. PRAMS is an excellent source of population-based data on many aspects of maternal and child health, including numerous topics on breastfeeding.

Jayne Jackson is one of the first families of Black Mothers' Breastfeeding Association (BMBFA). Both, as a mommy member and volunteer she has worked tirelessly to support BMBFA's efforts in the community. Currently, she is BMBFA's Community-based Doula and Community Breastfeeding Educator, a lead trainer for the Community-based Doula Program and coordinator of BMBFA's signature work, Black Mothers' Breastfeeding Club®. Jayne has a passion to 'heal the plate' and redefine the way that society views food. After becoming a Certified Lactation Counselor and Acupuncture Detox Specialist, Jayne began studying herbology at the Detroit Holistic Institute. As a committee member for the United States Breastfeeding Committee, and advisory board member for both the Detroit Food and Policy Council and Daphne's Doves, Jayne continues to be the voice of the community.

Toncé Jackson is the Nutrition Education Nutritionist for the PHFE WIC Program in Los Angeles, CA. For the past ten years, Toncé has advanced her career at the WIC Program from Clerk to WIC Dietetic Internship Graduate to Registered Dietitian Nutritionist. In 2014, she became a Certified Lactation Educator Counselor, which sparked her interest and passion for African American breastfeeding promotion and awareness activities. She is the co-creator of CinnaMoms, an African American breastfeeding support group at the PHFE WIC Program. Toncé is a recent graduate of the University of Massachusetts-Amherst, with a Master of Public Health-Nutrition. She plans to use her advanced degree to further research for minority health and breastfeeding solutions.

Anayah Sangodele-Ayoka is a graduate of Yale University and Vassar College. She is a nurse-midwife and innovative culture worker leveraging digital media to impact health and parenting. Clinically, she cares for women across the life span at an independent birth center. Anayah also writes, speaks and consults with organizations on using social media to deepen community building and leverage social change. Anayah is co-editor of Free to Breastfeed: Voices from Black Mothers (Praeclarus Press) and a Consultant for MomsRising. Her work has been written about on Salon.com, HuffPost, Ms. Magazine, Mater mea, MyBrownBaby and ThinkProgress. She is a wife and mother to two curious and agile boys.

Tina Sherman is the Campaign Director for the Breastfeeding and Paid Leave Campaigns at MomsRising. Tina has dedicated her professional life to supporting and empowering moms and families. She has served as a legislative aide in the United States Senate, has worked with several child and women's advocacy organizations, is an active advocate on the North Carolina MomsRising Steering Committee and is a certified birth doula. Tina and her husband JP are raising four boys ranging from 2 to 11 years, including 8 year old twins. She is active in her small town and serves on the board of the local farmers market.

Shlonda Smith is currently employed with the Georgia Department of Public Health – Georgia WIC as the Breastfeeding Coordinator. She is a graduate of the University of South Carolina Aiken with a Bachelor's of Art in Sociology and Education. Besides a love for breastfeeding and babies, she enjoys reading, researching alternative living options (such as aromatherapy, essential oils use, homeopathy, home birthing, etc) homeschooling her children, and running half marathons. Her vision is to see women of color accurately represented among breastfeeding statistics, as well as lactation professions.

Catherine Sullivan, MPH, RD, LDN, IBCLC is Director and Clinical Assistant Professor at the Carolina Global Breastfeeding Institute in the Department of Maternal and Child Health at the Gillings School of Public Health, UNC-Chapel Hill. Catherine received her BS in Dietetics from East Carolina University and her MPH in Nutrition from UNC. She is a registered/licensed dietitian and a board certified lactation consultant with over 20 years of public health nutrition and breastfeeding experience. Catherine serves as course coordinator for the Mary Rose Tully Training Initiative, a CAAHEP accredited pathway 2 lactation training program. She facilitates the National Collaborative for Advancing the Ten Steps, and serves as CGBI's Principal Investigator on the core leadership team of CDC's EMPOWER Breastfeeding Initiative. Catherine served as State Breastfeeding Coordinator in the NC Division of Public Health from 2006-2013 and has worked at the local level as a WIC Director and as field faculty for NC State's Cooperative Extension Service. Additionally, she has been a faculty member and clinician in the Department of Family Medicine at ECU's Brody School of Medicine. Catherine currently serves on the executive board of the NC Breastfeeding Coalition, is Co-Chair of the NC Lactation Consultant Association, elected director to the US Breastfeeding Committee, and is the Immediate Past Chair of the Women's Health Dietetic Practice Group for the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics. She lives in Chapel Hill, North Carolina with her husband and 8 year old son Finn. Finn happily breastfed for 31 months.

Tikvah Wadley, AAS, CCE, CD(DONA), BDT (DONA), a Certified Doula and Birth Doula Trainer through DONA, has worked in the community for nearly 20 years and believes in empowering women in today's society. Her didactic and experiential training approach welcomes creativity and learning for every participant. An activist for women's health, she has served as a Lactation Counselor since 2003 and a Certified Child Birth Educator since 2002.

In 2012, she trained young women to become community-based doulas for youth in Chicago's foster care system, through HC One's partnership with UCAN. She continues working with this program, and with other community-based, peer-to-peer support programs around the country, today.

Tikvah is a warm and caring, experienced and often humorous public speaker, and is adept at resolving conflicts. Before joining the HC One staff, she was instrumental in recruiting more than 500 women for the University of Chicago Doula Project, taught a variety of classes for the YMCA. and co-trained breastfeeding peer counselors and community health workers in collaboration with existing HC One staff. With each training, she looks forward to meeting every participant and engaging the learning experience between mom and baby. In her free time, Tikvah likes to go treasure hunting — meaning, she looks for people to share encouraging words with, often strangers, for something they may be going through.

Peter M. Williams is the Community Health Worker for the Father's Forward Initiative within the Healthier Beginnings Division. Peter will work with men throughout the City of Detroit including the partners of those involved in the SisterFriends Project, to develop a mentoring group for men that will assist fathers in navigating maternal child health systems, be a support for men who encourage breastfeeding and be actively involved in the lives of their children. Peter has an extensive background in public health and community-based programs that include one of The Detroit Health Department's first initiatives (The Village Health Workers Program) utilizing lay health or Community Health Workers to address health in the community. He was also the Coordinator of the Skillman Court-Mandated Parenting. Peter is a graduate of Wayne State University with a Bachelor of Public Affairs. Peter is also a Certified Lactation Counselor having been inspired to get certified as a participant attending the 2016 BMBFA Conference.

The Honorable Dr. Kimberlydawn Wisdom is a board-certified Emergency Medicine Physician who practiced for 20 years at Henry Ford Health System in Detroit, Michigan. She is Senior Vice President of Community Health & Equity and Chief Wellness and Diversity Officer. She also founded and directed the Institute of Multicultural Health. Dr. Wisdom is an adjunct Assistant Professor of Medical Education at the University of Michigan (UM) Medical Center, and serves as adjunct Assistant Professor in the Department of Health Behavior and Health Education at UM School of Public Health. In 2003, Dr. Wisdom was appointed as Michigan's—and the nation's—first state-level Surgeon General to address Michigan's less than desirable health status. She is the recipient of numerous awards, has authored several peer-reviewed publications, and appeared on national television, including ABC's Nightline, and has presented to audiences across the country and internationally. In 2012, Dr. Wisdom earned the "honorable" designation when she was appointed by President Barack Obama to serve as a member of the Advisory Group on Prevention, Health Promotion, and Integrative and Public Health.
